During the 2011-2012 program year, the Nashville After Zone Alliance (NAZA) once again partnered with the David P. Weikart Center for Youth Program Quality (Weikart Center) to continue the implementation of a quality improvement system in afterschool programs for two different geographical zones within the city of Nashville ? the Northeast Zone and the South Central Zone. This Quality Improvement model was based on the Youth Program Quality Intervention, an assessment-driven continuous improvement process designed to: (a) build managers? continuous quality improvement skills; (b) increase the quality of instructional practices delivered in afterschool programs; and, ultimately, (c) increase students? engagement with program content and opportunities for skill-building.
